Community structures remain a viable, sustainable option for ensuring a consistent flow of accurate health information, and should be leveraged for the management of misinformation both during and outside public health emergencies. This has the potential to improve vaccine uptake and reduce hesitancy.

3. WHO. Advancing infodemic management in risk communication and community engagement in the WHO European region; 2022.